HALF-PRICE ADMISSION AND ACADEMIC BENEFITS

PACAM 2027 | April 23–25, 2027 | Foz do Iguaçu, Paraná, Brazil

1. Our commitment to education and academic accessibility

PACAM 2027, the Pan-American Congress of Aerospace Medicine, Urgent and Emergency Care, reaffirms its commitment to education, scientific research, professional development, and broader access to knowledge.

We recognize that academic and professional training is an ongoing process that does not end with the completion of an undergraduate degree. Physicians, nurses, physiotherapists, and professionals from different fields remain students when duly enrolled in recognized specialization, master's, doctoral, and other educational programs.

For this reason, PACAM 2027 proposes an academic access policy providing a 50% discount for eligible students, including degree-holding professionals pursuing formal academic education, subject to documentary proof.

Our policy will uphold statutory half-price admission rights under Brazilian and Paraná state law insofar as they apply to the event, while also providing institutional benefits intended to increase participation opportunities for Brazilian and international students and professionals.

The discount policy will be based on transparent criteria, respect for participants' rights, equal treatment of legally eligible beneficiaries, and clear disclosure of registration conditions.

We believe scientific knowledge should cross borders and that investing in continuing education means investing directly in quality of care, operational safety, and the preservation of lives.
